"I was admitted to the Rehabilitation Center of Alamogordo after I had spent some time at The Hospitals of Providence for internal bleeding. An interventional radiologist had to perform a TIPS procedure which uses imaging guidance to connect the portal vein to the hepatic vein in the liver. I had numerous blood transfusions and was also placed on the liver transplant list. When I came to the rehab center things began to change. I improved daily. I can't say enough about these people. They are so caring, knowledgeable and thoughtful. My husband and I have both had great outcomes from these services and it's the help we needed. My strength is improving, and I can breathe better. I feel like I have hope now."
